Great Neck Community School Celebrates Barbara Breslow's Retirement

By Rosanne Sardo

On Saturday, May 31, Great Neck Community School held a gala to celebrate the retirement of its director, Barbara Breslow. The event was held at Harbor Links Golf Course in Port Washington.

Mrs. Breslow, who has been the director of the school since 1994, announced her retirement last year. During her 14 years at the school, she has been responsible for incorporating many of the outstanding programs the children enjoy at the school today. She has managed to maintain the vibrancy, innovation and traditional values the school had when it was established 76 years ago. Her commitment and dedication to both the school and to the children who attend will truly be missed.

In the true spirit of a cooperative school, the event committee, led by board chairpersons Dina Lampione and Miriam Kobliner, volunteered their time to organize the event. One hundred and seventy-five guests including parents, staff, alumni, and friends and family of Mrs. Breslow attended the gala. The guests enjoyed dinner, dancing, and fabulous raffle prizes.

The gala was also a very successful fundraiser. Great Neck Community School gratefully acknowledges all the individuals and businesses that sponsored or donated to make it such a successful event.

Great Neck Community School is a not-for-profit, non-sectarian, multicultural pre-school and the oldest cooperative on Long Island.
